

ReMap3 - An international contemporary art platform

ReMap3 starts on Monday, September 12th (17:00) in Athens, Greece with a dense and versatile international programme of exhibitions and events open to the public. This year's event, the third one in the history of ReMap3, further reinforces its international character, as it becomes a meeting point for more than 250 artists, art historians and curators from around the world. Within the 38 independent and the 25 gallery projects comprising this year's ReMap3, the artistic community of Kerameikos - Metaxourgio will also be represented.

This year's programme is highlighted by the participation of a number of institutions and artists presenting their work in Greece for the first time, enhancing ReMap3's dynamic presence as a platform for emerging artists and institutions on the international contemporary art scene.

An alternative route is suggested within the area of Kerameikos - Metaxourgio through the 50 plus exhibitions and projects hosted by ReMap3, introducing and presenting visitors to an urban area that is developing into a contemporary cultural hub in the centre of Athens, where the new Athens Municipal Art Gallery was together with the Athens Film Archive, the Kunststube Athens, The Breder and Rebecca Camhi galleries, the ATOPOS Contemporary Visual Culture (ATOPOS, CYC, E.A.L). From this, XYZ Outlet and a number of freelance, including the new experimental stage Synergy and the internationally renowned Asia Theatre which has been active in the area for over 20 years.

Over the six weeks of the ReMap3 programme all these institutions will coexist with ReMap3 exhibitions and projects, which will be temporarily accommodate in unutilized spaces throughout the area. Far removed from the classic exhibition spaces provided by museums, art fairs or galleries, these spaces are neoclassical and 1970s buildings, courtyards, vacant plots and even detached balconies.

The main exhibition programme is enriched by a range of performances, creative workshops and events staged in different spaces in the area, many of which will be inaugurated upon the opening on Monday, September 12th (17:00-22:00).

On Tuesday, September 13th Ntign Humanism, an independent curatorial by Nadja

Agropoulou will open at the Greek Film Archive (18:00-22:00). Taking a somewhat divergent approach to identity, Ntign Humanism sets the ever-present issue of coexistence in its sights. Confined to the sphere of the cinematic imagination and aiming to extend the discussion even further, Ntign Humanism: the cinematic annex is the abridged version of the Ntign Humanism experience.

Films of varying degrees of businessness from a range of historical and artistic contexts including: Joseph Hepig's 'The Adventures of Viljar', Angelos Prokopio's 'Daphne: Virgin of the golden laurels (one of the first art films made in Greece)', Rene Clair's 'Entrance', Jacob Prokops' 'The Feast of Saint George', Kostas Sifias' 'Allegory', Stavros Tomaz Balamos, Nektaris Photopoulos' 'Orestis' as well as films by Hristos Vasilopoulos, Eva Sidiropoulou and Antonis Angelidis, documentaries on Emperikou, Gonatas et al. and sculpture fragments from old films, storyboards and archives of every sort treating the cinematic experience in the multimedia studio on the ground floor, will seek to create an atlas of unexpected links centred on Ntign Humanism.

Another unique feature of ReMap3 is its info point, which will be based in the courtyard of an old house in the central Acroli square. The open air space has been designed by the distinguished architecture practice ANTONAS OFFICE, with the kind support of IKEA, and will also serve as a work and study 'cell' for creative groups wishing to make use of it. Free internet access will be provided, as well as a pop-up art bookshop. Entrance to the information 'cell' and to all ReMap3's exhibitions will be free of charge. All furnishings of the OPEN-AIR OFFICE are IKEA Home furnishings.

On Saturday 1 October 2011, the Museum of Cycladic Art will move its children's workshops downtown for the day to ReMap3's point, presenting creative activities for children aged 5-6, 6-8 and 10-12 from 12:30 to 16:00. The creative activities will seek to familiarize children and parents to an urban area designated to accommodate residential and working needs, in a period of Athens' rapid expansion. Also, mentions of new people used to be will be brought to life by workshops in photography and collage techniques, puppet theatre performances and storytelling. On Sunday 2 October 2011, the creative activities will return home to the Museum and the elegant neoclassical premises of the Stathatos Mansion.
